 - Need to prioritize getting Read the Docs setup so we can get docs officially published
 - Service chaining in containers use case in this doc has been getting a lot of attention! Woo!
 - Maybe pull this out as a blog post, linking back to the full doc?
 - Yes, good plan

 - RTD details from LF: <https://docs.releg.linuxfoundation.org/projects/lfdocs-conf/en/latest/index.html>
 - VMB: LF IT has a doc for how they set it up
 - Done it for several other LFN projects so far

 - Census is as done as it's going to be
 - Started calling out things that aren't doc'd yet or aren't clear
 - 2 different ways to deploy w/k8s, for instance
 - VMB: Will need to put these in tickets at some point, but A+ that we're tracking it
 - How's this connected to the website refactor?
 - No permanent dependency
 - Marketing can link to docs where they are, can fix links later if they move, write tickets to make sure we fix the links
 - Next steps
 - Getting RTD working
 - Start user journey, use for reorg of docs
 - Come up with plan for moving the docs according to the reorg
- <https://jira.tungsten.io/browse/TFB-1412>
 - WS: Current structure could work if the readme does a good job describing
 - VMB: Yes but...just fix the directory structure, barebones readme, just to get moving
 - VMB: Blocked by the Gerrit problem though, FYI
- Spreadsheet
 - Documentation punchlist
 - Over a year old
 - VMB doesn't believe this is a useful list anymore
 - Reference it on Docs Census so we don't lose track of it, but don't invest a lot of time in it right now
